

Learning Management System of the Indiana State Department of Health and the Indiana Mid-America Public Health Training Center

The Learning Management System (LMS) of the Indiana State Department of Health and the Indiana Mid-America Public Health Training Center (IU-MAPHTC) are providing the LMS to achieve the goals of improving preparedness and building competencies.

The LMS provides an opportunity for you to assess your own level of competency regarding various skills and knowledge; develop an education plan, and access competency-based courses to improve your professional development. To respond to the dynamic environments of your work setting, the LMS will constantly evolve, adding courses and information relevant to emerging challenges in your field.

The LMS is structured around helping the learner improve competencies in public health and emergency preparedness services. The ISDH, IN MAPHTC, and the University of Illinois at Chicago, Center for Public Health Preparedness are participants in a national effort to build competencies and improve capacity.
