No. of OPENINGS: Min. 24 / Max. 32

NASSAU COUNTY

1 DAY

NOVEMBER 8, 2018

LONG ISLAND

ANNOUNCED: MAY 3, 2018

Description:

This training course is designed for response operations and personnel who may have little or no training on radiological/nuclear emergency response. This course will provide an introduction to operations in a radiological weapon of mass destruction (WMD).

This course provides first responder personnel with fundamental knowledge regarding mission spaces related to radiological/nuclear threats. The response mission area includes an overview of radiological instruments, protective measures such as personal protective equipment (PPE) and decontamination: Emergency, Gross, Mass and Technical Decontamination.

Objectives:

- Recognize possible radiological/ nuclear Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) threats, and understand the consequences of a radiological/nuclear terrorist incident.
- Explain the concepts of ionizing radiation, its sources, properties and units of measure.
- Differentiate between radiation exposure and contamination and then describe the potential harm and biological effects caused by ionizing radiation.
- Explain how to minimize the effects of radiation using the ALARA principles.
- Describe the primary function of three types of radiological instruments: dosimeters, survey meters, and Radio-Isotope Identification Devices (RIIDs), including their purpose, general characteristics and advantages and disadvantages.
- Demonstrate the basic operations of each of the instruments.
- Describe the Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and describe multiple decontamination methodologies, which could be used for response operations in a radiological/nuclear environment in order to reduce radiation exposure.
