

Mark Amatrudo

Mark Amatrudo serves as a subject matter expert in a number of areas, including public safety communications and PSAP cybersecurity. Throughout his over 40 year career in public safety and emergency management, he has served as a responder, chief officer, emergency management director and state-level emergency management and homeland security official. While initially serving public safety as a volunteer, he worked in private industry rising to the senior executive level in an international communications company, and later as a consultant to first responder equipment product companies. Chief Amatrudo has also been an instructor at the local, state and national levels and is a member of the Fire and Emergency Management Program faculty at the University of New Haven.