General Indicators and Warnings of Criminal or Terrorist Activity

Suspicious activity is any observed behavior that could indicate terrorism or terrorism-related crime

Suspicious Behaviors and Indicators:

- Behavior which appears to denote planning for terrorist activity, such as mapping out routes, playing out scenarios, monitoring key facilities and timing traffic flow or signals
- Inappropriate attire, such as loose or bulky clothing inconsistent with current weather conditions
- Any attempts to gain sensitive information regarding key facilities, security procedures or personnel
- Attempts to acquire supplies: explosives, weapons, ammunition, dangerous chemicals or other materials to use in an attack
- Attempts to acquire employee equipment such as: vehicles, uniforms, badges, access cards or identification to gain entry to key facilities
- Presence of suspicious materials that could be used to construct or disguise explosives
- Physical surveillance, videotaping or attempts to photograph potential targets (including via Drone/UAS), focusing on access points and other features of a location that are not typically photographed by the public (e.g., building structure, security cameras)
- Presence of individuals who do not appear to belong in the workplace, business establishment or near a key facility
- Attempts to access restricted areas or to penetrate/test physical security and response procedures at key facilities
- Presence of the same vehicle observed parked for extended periods of time with no apparent relation to the workplace or business establishment (possibly surveilling)
