

Course Description

State Recovery Planning and Coordination (K-209)

Description:

This course focuses on the scope and complexity of recovery; federal preparedness guidance and resources; the importance of pre-disaster recovery planning; and pre-disaster planning concepts, doctrine and linkages. The course is designed to provide participants with a step-by-step review of their roles in state recovery planning and on the strengths and weaknesses of their current state recovery plans or framework. A key dynamic throughout the course is the on-going review of the participants' existing state recovery plans, and the key outcome of the course will be the participants' action plans to return to their respective agencies and organizations to update and improve their state recovery plans.

Course Objectives:

- Describe the process of pre-disaster recovery planning.
- Discuss critical stakeholders and partners in recovery planning.
- Articulate to state agencies and organizations their role in recovery planning and implementation.
- Describe considerations in selecting a State Disaster Recovery Coordinator and developing a state Recovery Support Function (RSF) structure.
- Describe how states can support local recovery planning pre- and post-disaster.
- Develop an approach to engage and maintain recovery partner relationships.
- Explain how to identify, coordinate and manage recovery resources.
- Develop or refine a state recovery plan.

Prerequisites:

- IS-2900.a: National Disaster Recovery Framework (NDRF) Overview

All participants must have a FEMA Student Identification (FEMA SID) number. Students can search for their existing/create a new FEMA SID at: <https://cdp.dhs.gov/femasid/>.

Length: 32 Hours

Target Audience:

State emergency management leadership and agency staff who have a role in recovery planning and operations; other State agency, private-sector and non-governmental partners who support state recovery planning and implementation.
