Tactical Team Leadership Course

Course Description

Tactical Team Leadership is a three-day course designed to enhance the capabilities of New York State's tactical response teams. The Tactical Team Leadership course combines New York State and national expertise and best practices to inform structured, consistent, and effective tactical operations. This course provides both new and senior Tactical Team Leaders with the skills necessary to lead tactical operations and plan for crisis situations. This course emphasizes the mission planning process and preparation for police tactical operations to include the development and delivery of an operation order.

The Tactical Team Leadership course includes classroom discussions and activities, an advanced tabletop exercise, and scenario-based activities conducted in realistic training environments. At the conclusion of the course, participants will be more thoroughly qualified to plan, lead, and execute tactical operations.

Topics Includes

Leadership Principles, the administrative duties of a Team Leader, command considerations, the Tactical Operations Center (TOC), and operation planning.
