Course Description:

Initial Response to Active Shooters (IRAS) is a basic active shooter course designed to prepare law enforcement officers for an initial response to an Active Shooter Event (ASE) but also applies to other types of Aggressive Deadly Behavior (ADB).

First arriving officers will need to establish incident command or decide to relinquish command, choosing instead to make entry or establish a contact team to engage the shooter(s).

This course emphasizes techniques and tactics that will allow officers to quickly and decisively engage attackers and mitigate the threat. The instructors will stress the “why” with each tactic taught so that students can choose the best tactic for the given situation. The tactics will range from room clearing, hallway movement, team movement, to stairway clearing.

Student Equipment Requirements:

Students should bring their duty belt and wear comfortable clothes conducive for force-on-force, reality-based training. Jeans and BDU pants are acceptable, as well as long sleeve t-shirts or button down long sleeve shirts and shoes that you normally wear during the course of duty. You may bring a ballistic vest if you wish, but it is not mandatory. All necessary protective gear required for force-on-force training utilizing non-lethal training ammunition (NLTA) will be provided to you. If you have your own protective gear, such as Simunition® or ATK® that you normally wear during FoF training, you may bring it, but it must be approved by staff before allowing you to use it during the training. Each officer is responsible for properly securing his or her weapon(s) during the training course. No personal or agency weapon (including impact and less-than-lethal weapons), live ammunition, weapon magazines, or flash bangs are to be on the officer or in the training area (including classroom) at any time during this course.

NOTE The SPTC has gun lockers for the storage of weapons during class.
